"Cases and Exercises" provides undergraduate and graduate students with a glimpse into the applied world of business, finance and the law. The carefully selected cases and exercises are rooted and derived from real world experiences. The book is meant as a supplement to those courses to which it may be relevant. It does not replace a textbook but rather gives textbooks context and meaning. It is hoped that this book will challenge students to think rationally and ethically. Hopefully, it will also help motivate students to learn.
