Kenneth Waltz's 1979 Theory of International Politics is credited with bringing about a "scientific revolution" in the study of international relations - bringing the field into a new era of systematic study. The book is also a lesson in reasoning carefully and critically. Good reasoning is exemplified by arguments that move systematically, through carefully organised stages, taking into account opposing stances and ideas as they move towards a logical conclusion. Theory of International Politics might be a textbook example of how to go about structuring an argument in this way to produce a watertight case for a particular point of view. Waltz's book begins by testing and critiquing earlier theories of international relations, showing their strengths and weaknesses, before moving on to argue for his own stance - what has since become known as "neorealism". His aim was "to construct a theory of international politics that remedies the defects of present theories." And this is precisely what he did; by showing the shortcomings of the prevalent theories of international relations, Waltz was then able to import insights from sociology to create a more comprehensive and realistic theory that took full account of the strengths of old schemas while also remedying their weaknesses - reasoning out a new theory in the process.

How to Deal with the Cares of Life

Why do so many Christians seem to struggle from one defeat to the next, never really experiencing the abundant life God has for them? The answer is no mystery. In fact, author Michael Cameneti points us directly to the answer declared clearly by God Himself throughout His Word: The missing ingredient that most people lack is the fear of the Lord. Just how important is the fear of the Lord to our ultimate success in life? Michael gives it to us straight, "If we choose to forsake the fear of God, we are on our own in life, relegated to making decisions and going through the trials of life without His help." He goes on to conclude, "The stakes couldn't be higher for whether or not you walk in the fear of God is a decision that will determine the outcome of your life." So what do you choose for your life? A never-ending cycle of defeat and discouragement as you try to navigate through life's storms using your own limited resources? Or a brand-new commitment to learn how to walk in the fear of the Lord? If you choose the latter, you have just embarked on a new kind of journey -- one in which you are never a loser; never left without divine guidance and help; and always moving forward toward the glorious destination God has planned just for you! Each year, approximately 1.5 million people in the United States and Canada are diagnosed with cancer. This is one family's story. Winner of the 2005 Eisner Award in the category of Best Digital Comic for the original Web version, Mom's Cancer is now available as a graphic novel. An honest, unflinching, and sometimes humorous look at the practical and emotional effect that serious illness can have on patients and their families, Mom's Cancer is a story of hope—uniquely told in words and illustrations. Brian Fies is a freelance journalist whose mother was diagnosed with lung cancer. As he and his two sisters struggled with the effects of her illness and her ongoing recovery from treatment, Brian processed the experience in his journal, which took the form of words and pictures. The story that came to be known as "Mom's Cancer" first gained notice on the internet. It was posted anonymously, with the intention of sharing information and insights gained from his family's experience. Thanks to the words and illustrations of Brian Fies, readers have already responded that they were surprised and gratified to realize that they weren't alone. Abrams ComicArts is proud to bring this story to a whole new audience.
